LIEBERMAN CONCERT CROWDS THE NATIONAL

Ensemble of Twenty Pianos and New Orchestra in Varied Selections.

A sacred concert, under the direction of Miss Lieberman and participated in by her class, attracted to the National Theater last night an audience which filled the entire auditorium and nearly all the proscenium boxes.

Members of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, under Prof. Green, its assistant leader, and others from similar organizations in New York, Phila-delphia, and Baltimore, occupied the center of the stage. They were surrounded by twenty upright planos, while in front of them were two grands. In several of the compositions played the orchestra and all the planos were in use, with two pupils at each instru-

The clash which Miss Lieberman had with Reginald De Koken, over the use of the Washington Symphony Orchestra's name in advertising her concert, will not occur again, because of an arrange-ment entered into last night. Members of that organization assured the con-ductor they would play, under her di-rection, in a series of concerts, under the title of the Philharmonic Orchestra of Washington. It will consist of forty men at first, and will be expanded at times for layer concerts.

ROYAL ARTILLERY BAND AT COLUMBIA THEATER

Tasca and His Musicians Give Two Enjoyable Concerts.

Two concerts were given yesterday at the Columbia Theater by Tasca and his Royal Artillery Band. The audiences in attendance were hardly adequate to the excellent entertainment offered, but those who were there listened with evident interest to both series of musical selections. Popular taste was satisfied at the afternoon recital, when several well-known and tuneful composition formed a part of the program. In the evening the band played more serious works from Rossini, Wagner and other

The work of the band was quite up to the standard set in press dispatches from other sities. Precision, snap and withful adherence to the scores of the different numbers characterized the playing. Although this is the first that Tasca and his musicians have visited the Capital, both deserve to be classed among the best musical organizations.
